

Extension Story Checklist: CORE COMPONENTS OF EXTENSION STORIES

Rather than a standard dictionary definition, an Extension story can be identified by the key elements that comprise it. Subject matter, topics, tone, purpose. In particular, pay attention to the “5 P’s” — Purpose, People, Partnerships, Programs and Process — which emphasize our unique value proposition and differentiate us in the market.

This tool is meant as a basic checklist to help you prioritize topics and frame your stories in a way that grows our collective Extension brand identity. When developing your stories - or vetting existing stories - use this checklist to guide you.

You must be able to check the first two boxes for all stories:

- PURPOSE — Does this story or topic show how Extension improves the lives of North Carolinians and/or grows the state?
- PURPOSE — Does this story or topic teach others a lesson about how to do something differently or inspire them to make a positive change?

You should be able to check at least one of the next four boxes, but you don’t have to check every one (the more the better):

- PEOPLE — Does this story or topic show how Extension’s people provide high-tech, high-touch service to clients and communities in our state?
- PARTNERSHIPS — Does this story or topic show how Extension’s partnerships (local or statewide) position us to benefit the state?
- PROGRAMS — Does this story or topic show how Extension develops and/or implements programs that deliver university research into the field to address client needs?
- PROCESS — Does this story or topic show how Extension provides individualized solutions that empower clients and help them make better-informed decisions?

Find step-by-step guidance and more resources for developing stories at:

go.ncsu.edu/Extension-Storytelling